Lacala Hung to Meat Hook in Restaurant and Face Was Slashed With Knives.

HAD $110 IN HIS VEST.

This and Make Their Escape.

Hung by a poore about his neck to a face with stilettes, Diego Lucals, thirty-five, cook in the place, defied his torturers, and refused to tell where he hept his savings. Thrice they raised and lowered him, choked black in the and threatened to cut off his nose pricked him about his eyes. At last they located his savings of west he wore under his shirt. They cut

Tortured Their Victim.

About 2 o'clock three men entered and ordered meals. They were very wet, coming in from the storm, and asked to be allowed to sit at the kitchen range to dry their clothing. Lacala consented, and sat down himself, tired by his night's work, to watch the field cooking. One of the trio got behind him and allowed a name around his nack. It was transfer agent with the Metropolitan off the floor.
Then they demanded his money.

When they loosened the noose to let him speak Lacala tried to fight. They Three Assailants Finally Get hauled him up again and began to carve his face with their knives.

Again they let him down and again he refused to tell where his money was. Up he was dragged again, and they sliced his gose and gashed his eyebrows as he choked, while they searched his clothing for his money. After this torture they let him down a third time meat book in the kitchen of a restaut and gave him a chance to give up his rant at No. 147 Cherry street, early this cash without further abuse, but he orning, while three Italians carved his would not give in. Then they found
